Cabbage demand is up well and at prices that are around 9¢ the hamper, or $20 to $25 the ton.

I. E. Hamilton, of the Florida East Coast system, who handles business affairs for the corporation, in a communication to the newspaper representative Tuesday stated: "Our road is very much pleased with its season business, which promises to exceed that of 1929 by quite a margin. Last year we had about 1,569,000 bushels of cabbage and this year it will go over 2,000 ears. I look for cabbage to be one of our main leaders next year."

"In my opinion the Glades area is just on the threshold of greater farming expansion and industrialization, on a scale that will attract the rest of the world. I predict that with the adoption of greater diversified crop plantings, that beans will no longer be the outstanding Glades crop, although they will always have a high spot in the farm economy."

"We are getting better farmers, better crops, and better returns, for farming is now being done on a more systematic program. Farmers are watching the seasonal conditions, and planning accordingly. They are handling their products much better, without so much waste, and growing a better quality. Packers are keeping pace with better handling, packing,

"I am of the opinion that the Glades will be the main celery center, lettuce will make big gains, and other leaf and root products will also have big gain showings. "With the vegetable business expanding, and the increase in the number of houses tax-free especially in the rush section, it means there must be more such buildings erected in the Glades for the prompt handling of the crops, especially during the peak demand, and prices are high. In fact I know there are several parties and firms who are planning on such industrial expansion during the coming summer."

Fire Sweeps Two S. Bay Buildings

South Bay had a bad fire shortly after noon Tuesday in which the two story buildings owned by J. D. Pool and Jack Moore were burned to the ground, including all contents.

The Moore building was used as a grocery and meat market, and the upper floor for living quarters, while the Moore building sheltered living rooms and a kitchen.

The fire caught in the floor and spread and had secured

such a start that it was impossible to extinguish. Flames soon spread to the adjoining building, and it too was soon in flames.

The Moore building and stock will run around $4,000, and the Moore loss around $2,500.

Both owners carried insurance.

Both the Belle Glade and Clewiston fire departments were summoned, but there was little to save by the time they arrived on the scene.

New Explosive Is Now Being Used

The drill barges on the lake improvement work are now using the explosive from the Dupont factories called Nitromon, said to be a safer and more powerful explosive than ordinary dynamite.

The recovery is also made of the recovery of 32 cans of dynamite in the lake, which had not exploded, and is supposed to be some of the same type that exploded during the big storm some months ago. It is reported that this accounts for practically all of the lost explosive from the barge at that time.

The Arundel corporation's outfit is "going to town" on its new section of work, between Canal Point and Pahokee, as record shows record breaking progress.

the Florida vegetable producers and raise the sugar quota, but that these were federal matters and he could do nothing about it. "However," said Holland, "I will use my influence as governor, and be at the service of the producers in every way that I can to try to get the federal government to grant a larger sugar quota so that the sugar industry can be expanded."

Holland said that his interest in agriculture has not been aroused by his ambition to be governor of the state. He is a small grower and farmer, himself, has served on committees of the state senate handling agricultural matters and has been author, introducer and sponsor of most of the agricultural legislation introduced by the state legislature in the past four sessions.
